VILLA SIAM

BALI - UMALAS

Villa Siam repose in the peaceful village of Umalas, the stylish neighbourhood bordering the out skirt of Seminyak to the west. A grand "house" it is. Entirely dressed with beautiful antique furnishings originating from Indonesia's past, undying witness of the many cultural influences it bears, both Asian and European. Muted coloured walls, polished patinas and the magical grounds frame it all in the most natural manner. Within a vast and flourishing garden, the house consist of four buildings spread within the property.

The main house homes three bedrooms.

Its large entrance opens to the right onto an indoor dining area with an open bar kitchen for service and a few steps down the cosy living room and its sliding glass walls allowing a lovely view of the garden. One may step out from there to one side onto the terrace hosting the outdoor dining table, and to the other side onto the connecting deck leading to the pool.

Back in the entrance a couple of staircases take you up to the master bedroom. Surprisingly large, it gives a delightful theatrical first impression to those unaware of what is to be found behind the rather small door of its entrance. The space is shared within two levels, reigned upon by the magnificent view framed by the long window facing the depth of the room. The upper level homes the large bed and the lower part welcomes an imposing desk and beautifully fitted day bed. To the side a large sliding door opens onto a private deck overlooking the pool, garden and gorgeous rice paddies ahead. On the other side of the landing another small door opens onto a smaller bedroom with the same fascinating view.

These two rooms share the main bathroom, beautifully conceived, as all the house's bathrooms, with indoor and outdoor space, allowing to enjoy both comfort yet charms of the tropical environment.

The little stairway facing the main entrance door, leads to yet another large bedroom, perfect for children or a small family, with its main double bed, single bed to one side and beautifully carved day bed facing the window and view to the garden. In its wake, a charming old Javanese painted door opens onto the en suite bathroom, a lovely shade of blue.

By the side of the house the pool quietly awaits with its lagoon blue water and welcoming lounges. The various dwellings surrounding it create a unique and most elegant atmosphere. Indeed it is embraced by a few structures or Bale originating from different islands of the Indonesian archipelago.

The smaller ones are perfect to lay in and relax shaded from the sun.

In the largest one behind the pool, the Joglo, resides the main kitchen, in which are prepared upon request the most delicious feast.

Facing the pool on the other side is the Aceh house, an original structure on stilts, hosting in its lower part a series of hanging bubble chairs, plantation chairs and a large day bed. A little further, a whimsical "beetle" car made out of rattan sits by the door of this marvelous guest bungalow. At the back a door opens onto a charming bathroom with its own garden.

Up a set of rather steep stairs, a little door reveals the enchanting atmosphere of the bedroom suite. Stepping through time is what comes to mind, when passing through the threshold of the beautifully carved ancient house. Inside the atmosphere reminisces of early 19th century European literature. Balzac would most certainly have enjoyed to retreat here, for muted are the colours and the light infinitely playful coming through the delicate "lace like" carving in the walls.

The space is divided in three, entered through a small salon leading to the bedroom further yet leading to a third room, easily transformed to accommodate children when required. From all the windows gorgeous views of either the garden or surrounding rice paddies.

Lastly, in the shadow of the main house, slightly retrieve from the rest is a second guest bungalow with en suite bath. Again a large room with peaceful garden view and lovely atmosphere
