VILLA ZOLIMA

BALI - TABANAN

In the vicinity of Tabanan, an hour and a half away from Seminyak and its business, set amongst stunning rice fields, coconut groves and minutes away from wild and restful black sand beaches, resides a contemporary and beautifully conceived family holiday home.

Dreamed by the GM architects, Zolima is the peaceful, longed for retreat of a family with three young children, having chosen Bali as a graceful escape from their busy Hong-Kong life.

Simple yet luxurious, as in much tropical architecture, a large place has been dedicated to enjoy the indoor/outdoor style of living.

Built with a strong focus on comfort, ease of living and privacy, the property is divided into three distinct quarters and attention to details is evident throughout.

From the parking lot, one is lead through a small path into the living area. A few steps down lays a large room furnished sparsely yet very comfortably, with large sofas and ottomans. To its side another few steps lead to the extremely well fitted kitchen, with large counter spaces and all the required appliances and amenities to please "cooks" the world over. In its wake both an indoor and outdoor dining area offer possible choices to fit different moods.

Down below the pool is a welcoming haven, set amongst an abundance of flourishing bougainvilleas, where one can fully breathe in the fantastic view that graces the south and west side of the house; undulating rice fields bordered afar by towering palm trees and further in the distance the calm and serenity of the ocean.

Back in the living room, to the opposite side of the dinning area, a discreet doorway leads to the privacy of the master suite in which you will find a media and reading nook with shelves of books, an lcd screen to enjoy movies on a rainy day and a stereo system, which feeds on demand each room of the house for your listening enjoyment.

Further on a large corridor reveals three doors respectively opening onto the master bedroom, the children's room, and their shared bathroom.

The master bedroom is a large, cool and breezy room elegantly furnished with a mix of contemporary and antique elements, opening onto a wonderfully shaded terrace over looking the more private part of the land, reminiscent of the forest laying beyond the property's border.

In its entrance, set to the right, is an abundantly large and impeccably conceived dressing room. To its opposing wall, a door separates the room from the bathroom, its elegant, Japanese like, wooden tub, and both an indoor and outdoor shower, meddling with style and ingenuity the essence and pleasure of tropical living and modern comfort.

The children's room, fresh and colourful, has been conceived with modular elements allowing for its transformation from its regular set up of three single beds into a large double bedroom or a six single beds dormitory, according to requirements.

Here again a lovely terrace overlooks the abundant flora of the surrounding "jungle", a mix of enchanting large leaf trees such as Teak and Jackfruits along rare Pines, Cacao, coffee and more.

From there those in the know can vaguely make view of the hidden pathway leading to the magical tree house built for the little ones' wondrous adventures exclusively.

Finally, tucked away slightly from the main building are the guestroom's quarters; an intriguing structure, cutting intricately through the landscape with the curviness of its walls and flat planes of its unusual rooflines.

Here again simplicity remains, with aboriginal decorative elements, complementing the warm colours of the walls in each of the two king size bedrooms.

Both rooms lead to a shared terrace fitted with a large lounging sofa to fully enjoy and take in the peace of the surroundings.

Through the sass like entrance of the structure they also share a lovely and bright bathroom where once again a mix of indoor and outdoor has elegantly been achieved.
